

WRITER'S JOURNEY SUMMER SESSION 2012
Registration Form for New Students

Dear Writers,

My regular spring classes will be ending the first week in June and I will be taking the rest of June and all of July off from weekly teaching.

I will be teaching four weeks this summer, during the month of August. These Writer's Journey classes meet for three hours each week and will be attended by a mix of alumni, current students and new students. Material in these sessions will not repeat.

New students are required to sign up for the entire four-week session. You have two choices: the Tuesday evening writing practice class (coed) or the Wednesday morning writing practice class (women only).

Writing practice is a great entry point for new students; you don't have to consider yourself a "writer" to attend.

If you are an established writer who is interested in a feedback group that critiques work in progress, please contact me directly.
